Good Afternoon All

I've just raced outside and snapped a couple of pictures of the house as the first snow is falling all around it. It was a pleasant +8 degrees last night when I got home from youth group, but this morning when I woke up it was 0 and now (Saturday arvo) its -1.5!

Having called off the proposed trip to Odessa today I'm having a 'catchup' Saturday. The van died at the sports complex last night and Ben just helped me tow it up the hill and put it in Dan's garage before the snow set in. I think I'm going to give up on the van and go back to public transport and my own two legs.

Tonight, Cheryl has a special event planned for the girls so Ben and I have decided to have an Aussie night, Ben is making meat pies and we are going to watch the AFL Grand Final between Brisbane and Port Adelaide (neither of us have seen it yet).

Tomorrow, I am preaching from Acts 6:1-7. The challenge will be for our church members to recognise that the church is a body and every member needs to contribute. We will then practically look at some of the tasks that are available in our church and allow people to find an avenue of service they can begin now.

Last week Ben managed to find the game 'Jenga' in Kyiv. It was great to have something new at youth group and was thoroughly enjoyed.

Language

I guess I should give a language update. I've been concentrating in the lessons a little better and am able to understand and assimilate what we are learning. However, my personal study time is getting pushed into a smaller and smaller time slot and my desire decreasing. It's so much easier to get caught up in organising things like youth group, church meetings, the futsol tournament and dreaming and planning out ideas for next summer. Yet I am always aware how much more effective I can be if I can communicate better in Ukrainian.

Futsol

.As I type this my printer is just finishing off 33 pages of the official Futsol Rules for the tournament that we are running on Dec 11. Please pray for the organisation of this. The talk of it is starting to get around town and if we can pull off a successful tournament we will be able to run many more in the future and have contact with many people, young and old, as everyone here loves football.

I am endeavouring to contact some people who have run similar events here to help me avoid some pitfalls. We would also like to find up-to-date, appropriate literature to hand out. I have been put in contact with another missionary from Romania who may be able to help. Please pray that our efforts will be blessed by God and ultimately for the growth of His Kingdom and for His Glory.
